Moving our troops to defend the oil fields in eastern Syria denies them to Russia/Iranian/Assad/ ISIS - We are cutting off valuable resources while removing our troops from reward less risk.

Many retired Mil officers have strong negative reactions to Trump's leadership - because the 2 previous post 9/11 president's deferred to the military for all things foreign policy. Trump is restoring the voice of the people to our military.

Joe is just wrong when he says "our interests intersected".
In 2014/2015 it was conventional wisdom that the "Syrian Kurds aren't expeditionary",meaning they didn't want to leave traditional Kurd territory,preferring to consolidate their forces.
The US convinced them to go Raqqa

They were expeditionary to give themselves a better standing with us and to go on the offensive against ISIS. The Kurds are great fighters and will fight with us as long as we are providing money and air support. Same is true for most foreign armies/militias we support.

Right. But the preferred COA for the Kurds was to stay in far NE Syria & select towns along Turkish border.
They didn't want to take 11,000 deaths on soldiers that could be used to patrol their own territory.
They went outside based on US promises, that you are ok with breaking.

It does counter the narrative of bringing the troops home if it becomes a long deployment.

The Nusra Front and Islamic State were rivals who fought bloody battles against each other in the Syrian war.

The Nusra Front, founded by Abu Mohamad al-Golani, was al Qaeda's official affiliate in Syria until it broke away from the global jihadist network in 2016.

According to the Idlib commander, Hayat Tahrir al Sham recently captured another aide to

The narrative that many active & retired military officers are pushing is that we need to remain in our current GWOT deployment footprint to conduct inter & CT operations. This weekend's actions against ABB & his subordinates demonstrate strength with a limited footprint.

ISIS prisoner camps make it clear that ISIS is an ideology that we cannot defeat by fighting like civilized westerners, this is why letting Assad/Russia/Iran deal with these savages as only thugs can is the best course of action in a region with no clean options.

The Kurdish-led Syrian Democratic Forces currently control the country's 11 largest oil fields. It is a priority for the Assad government to get those back, as Syria is facing a huge fuel crisis. The country's daily oil requirement stands at 136,000 barrels but infrastructure facilities produce only 24,000 barrels. Iran used to be Syria's main oil supplier but after sanctions had been tightened, the Iranians had to reduce oil supplies

Seth Frantzman @sfrantzman 4h

So actually Syria s oil fields have a use and Damascus wants them and Iran due to SANCTIONS, has not been able to help its Syrian partner So Russia and Syria might want to come to a deal with @realDonaldTrump , as Trump indicated they might.

By seizing the oil we took control of leverage that will be used to further economically attrit Russia/Iran/Assad. This bleeds 2 strategic threats (RU/IR) & could be used to get Assad to the table & break with RU/IR. @realDonaldTrump is playing by the new rules of war.

Pls correct me if I'm wrong, the counties you noted lack major sectarian fault lines like Iraq, Syria, Lebanon and are not critical ground in the Sunni vs. Shia war between Iran & Saudi / Gulf states. Geography curses Iraq & Levant with foreign metaling leading to perpetual war.

If you see the world only in Shia and Sunni then it's hard to recognize revolutionary change when t comes.

So maybe it s t me to stop sectarianizing the discussion and actually listen to the protestors voices.

Fair point. I hope the Iraqi protestors succeed in expelling Iran & their proxies from the GOI. My concern is US gov support for the protestors assists Iran, as does supporting GOI. Iraqi Shia made their bed by favoring Iran over Iraq since 03.

I spent a lot of time with US Special Forces on the ground in Syria where they had a clear mission over two administrations to defeat ISIS. These images of US forces now in Syria with an ill-defined mission to guard small oil fields make me cringe

Great read on an important topic. Trump's win in 2016 was a referendum on both Parties foreign policy - but Americans largely stopped paying attention after the election, as they normally do.

We need to have a national conversation on how / why use our military.

First tweet from Trump about his war-crimes pardons made Friday.

Fact check:

1) Bergdahl did not get pardoned. Obama declined to do so. Bergdahl did avoid jail time in a decision made in the Army.

2) Obama didn t pardon Manning, but shortened jail sentence from 35 years to 7

It appears the USMC didn't change anything they just let women attend BRC.

Whereas Ranger school studied the issue, had special graders etc. which opened the flood gates for criticism & hurt the women who had the guts to try out.

USMC handled this well.

Don't forget we paid for the infrastructure for Iran to use Iraq as it's strategic staging ground, twice.

once when we removed Saddam & only listened to Iraqi Shias under Iran's control.

& again when the Iraqi Army crumbled to ISIS.

Iran in control is our reward.

The al-Khazali bros murdered US troops and Iraqis, both were given sanctuary by the former Iraqi PM Maliki until they were captured by Coalition Forces in 07 released 2010 & killed numerous US troops 2010-11.

Like ISIS's LDRs, we could have fixed this issue over a decade ago.

So not only have we played catch & release we also paid for the GOI to support Iran, kill JS troops and ki Iraq protesters.

Not because of a conspiracy but due to our foreign policy being ran by idea stic theory from neo cons and neo bs.

Shan was killed in Syria almost a year ago. That was her 5th GWOT combat tour.

Her 4th was to Afghanistan- where she ran intel ops attached to a SEAL platoon living in a combat out post.

She described our war in Afghanistan as sisyphean.

Fac ng the failures of our post 9/11 wars as a veteran & gold star husband is maddening.

I take great pride in the fact that my wife, our warrior family of vets & I answered our nat on's cal to serve.

America is worth it.

Mentally separating the service from the policy & politics is how I stay sane, that and burpees.

I hope our policy failures motivate our generation of vets to get involved in foreign policy & motivate the American ppl to understand why we are fighting & demand real results.

The Pentagon is quick to audit the use of US Troops to defend our border, while taking 18 years to audit our longest war.

The pentagon is happy to have us fight, die & spend in the back waters of the Euphrates & Helmand valleys but cautious about securing our people.

Agree on the supply vs demand issue with narcotics. The threat is how powerful the cartels have become. Addressing that issue is critical - many say it's too hard while accepting the steady trickle of the GWOT because it's become the easy button.

The politicians (3 presidents & congresses) have no incentive to check on what the military is doing because the Americans ppl our politicians are accountable to simply don't care about the wars.

How do we fix this?

As a career professional soldier I only want to serve with volunteers.

However the more I assess how we've gotten to a place where we fight wars for 18 years with minimal public interest, a draft seems like the only way to avoid endless wars.

75th Ranger Regiment has seen proportionately more combat than the SEALs, is deployed at 1:2 dwell (vs the SEALs 1:3 dwell), and doesn't have anywhere near the discipline problems. The two organizations, while both SOF, also have almost opposite cultural views on discipline.

We should remember NSW's leaders & big navy encouraged them seeking the limelight for years - and now they act surprise when the rank & file go rouge. Leadership matters.

ADL

WHO WE ARE WHAT WE DO EDUCATION RESEARCH & TOOLS NEWS TAKE ACTION JOIN

Over the year and a half since the original hoax campaign began ADL has tracked its usage by a variety of figures on the far right, including some well-known white supremacists, though it seems to be even more popular among the so-called alt-right. Use of the "OK" gesture has spread beyond the far right and can now also be found within the broad community of mainstream Donald Trump supporters—some of whom seem to have no idea of its origins.

Even though its usage has expanded and evolved, it still seems primarily intended to trigger or troll people on the left and cause them to react, although some white supremacists have also used it—generally jokingly—among themselves.

It is important to realize that the "OK" gesture is a nearly universal hand gesture and most usage of it is completely innocuous. Even when used as described here, the fact that white supremacists, the alt-right and many Trump supporters all use the symbol means that one cannot assume that anyone who poses with such a gesture is intending or exhibiting an association with white supremacy. Only if the gesture occurs in context with other clear indicators of white supremacy can one draw that

Two things can be true at the same time.

War is real if you are fighting it.

Targeted drone/special ops missions do save larger wars. But their ease leads politicians to overly rely on them without forming a lasting strategy. Resulting in infinity war.

Yep. And when the Taliban were in charge the opium business was tiny because they weren't down with it.

Now they let it go because they need the money to fund the war against us and the business has grown massively.

It's completely insane

Timely & timeless - when ISIS is defeated it finds sanctuary in disputed territory.

The Sunnis use ISIS to fight against the Shia GOI.

The Kurds use the threat of ISIS to retain US support.

The Sunnis of the region will return to ISIS as long as GOI/Assad remain.

Most of our senior officers have done a fantastic job at getting impressive sounding degrees and a great job waxing philosophical about the complexities of the war.

When it comes to execution most chase qualifiable metrics that have minimal long term effect.

The #AfghanistanPapers point out why our military needs a strong POTUS capable of questioning the military. Unchecked the military will always offer more military solutions & claim victory.

There are now reports coming in that Iran has upped the ante by striking a US military base north of Baghdad This is quickly becoming a transformational escalation. one that risks becoming a full fledged conflict between the US and Iran on Iraqi soil.

I agree we should have stayed the hell out of Iraq. Most the post Saddam leaders of Iraq were exiled out of Iraq during Saddam's reign and returned to seats in the newly formed government, after we ignorantly took the advice of exiled Shia dissidents.

Good artic e, but why did th s get worse after Trump annu ed the JCPOA. If we are honest about Bush and Obama fa ures, we shou d talk about the escalatory sanctions and non proportional response against KH that prec pitated this. What's our end goa n raq ? "Protect the oil"?

Thanks for reading. The finances that Iran gained access to from the JCPOA fueled their expansion.

Trump had to cut it off. Trump also had to deal with ISIS - that inadvertently helped Iran. So this confrontation was inevitable.

Our end goal in Iraq has always been a fantasy.

Thanks for reading The finances that Iran gained access to from the JCPOA fueled their expansion

Trump had to cut it off Trump also had to deal with ISIS that inadvertently helped Iran So this confrontation was inevitable.

Our end goal in Iraq has always been a fantasy

Joe thanks for the thoughtful article, Iran was intimately engaged in Lebanon, Syria, and Iraq before getting their money unfrozen. Also, I have some familiarity with their procurement cutouts in UAE that ran for decades. I believe KSA and ISIS made their fight existential negotiate a way out with Sadr. Iran had an interest in bringing the battle to an early close. Even though its Quds Force had at least one military adviser embedded with Sadr, Iran was also backing an array of Shiite politicians in the upcoming January elections. The Islamic Republic had as much reason as the Americans to ensure that the violence in Najaf would not prevent the elections from taking place. Rubaie and Muhandis flew by helicopter to Najaf with Brigadier General Dennis Hejlik, who was commanding the Marine effort there; they then drove with him in a Humvee to the governor's office. It was unusual for the United States to be transporting an ally of Suleimani's Quds Force, but Rubaie did not advertise Muhandis's Iranian ties, simply insisting all the while that he was a channel to Sadr.

Thanks again. Iran was bad before the JPCOA and bad but with more $ after. So we had to take action to stop their spread. Just like we had to stop ISIS. As u pointed out there is no long term plan or goal for us there.

If we look at the IRAM/EFP threat more bodies in fixed locations means more guys to keep under cover, more supplies moving on routes to sustain the foot print - all that equals more opportunities for our enemies to use their most lethal weapons. We play into their strengths.

31 rockets did not slip by a sleepy local cop. They were taken from GOI secured military base, driven by GOI vehicles and shot by GOI paid members of the PMU.

The source of funding for the attack was the US tax payer.

Good article, but why did this get worse after Trump annulled the JCPOA. If we are honest about Bush and Obama failures, we should talk about the escalatory sanctions and non-proportional response against KH that precipitated this. What's our end goal in Iraq? "Protect the oil"?

@realDonaldTrump Thank you for striking back against Iranian terrorism. No other president has.

Our military can strike anywhere/anytime - Iran can most effectively strike us in our embassy and bases. Remove our forces from harms way bomb the rest of KH sanction Iraq like Iran.

I'd take strong ssue with any offic al calling imminent attacks by Sulmani "razor thin"

It's hardly a secret that Sulmani told his proxies in Iraq to hold their fire on US forces in IZ/SY during the fight against IS S but to be prepared to strike us when ISIS was beaten

It's great ISOF showed up- but remember their deployment was authorized by the same government that allowed KH to attack the embassy yesterday.

A temporary pause to assess our reaction is part of Sulmani's game, not Iraq acting as a real country & restoring order.

Obviously removing Saddam & de ba ath fication but mostly for allowing the Supreme Council for Islamic Revolution in Iraq (SCIRI) into the interim government.

SCIRI s Badr & Amiri's political w ng knew that in 2003.

Lise Korson @maybaron1 Jan 1

Right timing of letting Iran ans into Iraq, but reason wasn't "to make neocon vision work." Unless you call the vision shared power in Iraq among Sunni & Shia. Saddam had squeezed out the Shia, letting Sunni dominate Sunni majority in region, not in Iraq

We excel at hunting & killing savages.

If that alone worked the GWOT would have been over long ago.

Our record on untangling ourselves from the Middle East is abysmal.

We don't need Iraq, it's not strategic.

Great read on Sulmani's intent behind attacks against U.S.- divert attention from the protest movement, turn the ire of the protesters against a common enemy- the U.S.

Iran will respond - our embassy and most of our locations are surrounded by KH/PMU.

If we stay and pump our chests we play into Iran's hand - they want a confrontation.

Move away from their reach ASAP otherwise this is the start of another war.

Make Iraq chose - US or Iran.

Last night's success was made possible by a small cadre of silent professionals who have risked their lives to track Sulmani & his ilk 24/7 for almost 2 decades.

We will never know their names but we should all be grateful such men & women have chosen to serve our nation.

I m just angry that our r&d didn't develop properly during GWOT Normally we get experience and technology after wars. Vietnam and Korea gave us microchips Gu f War gave us advanced GPS and communication tech. I thought GWOT would ncrease our PSYOP capability, but it hasn't.

Whats telling about this video is the need to make it look like the GOI are acting like partners.

GOI only showed up once KH told their mob to leave, they pushed enough to get a reaction and keep our $.

Why are we trying to convince the public we have partners?

A peaceful solution to the situation could be had, Muhandis explained, as Rubaie in turn would tell Allawi and Casey. It might be possible to negotiate a way out with Sadr. Iran had an interest in bringing the battle to an early close. Even though its Quds Force had at least one military adviser embedded with Sadr, Iran was also backing an array of Shiite politicians in the upcoming January elections. The Islamic Republic had as much reason as the Americans to ensure that the violence in Najaf would not prevent the elections from taking place. Rubaie and Muhandis flew by helicopter to Najaf with Brigadier General Dennis Hejlik, who was commanding the Marine effort there; they then drove with him in a Humvee to the governor's office. It was unusual for the United States to be transporting an ally of Suleimani's Quds Force, but Rubaie did not advertise Muhandis's Iranian ties, simply insisting all the while that he was a channel to Sadr.

As I recall Sistani was the one who ultimately got Sadr out of the Imam Ali shrine and ended JAM's siege of Najaf.

His fatwa after ISIS invaded gave the PMU its popular support.

Sistani supports the grass roots protesters, if he condemns KH/Iran it could be a game changer.

I would de-escalate on Iran, the people are very pro-American. it is a matter of time before the mullahs. IRGC, Baseej, all go away. Our sanctions need to target the regime not the people who are suffering badly and have no recourse. KSA need to become Arabia with no more Sauds.

Little bit of a myth doing rounds regarding Iraq +explaining current crisis, "Iran aligned PMF leaders became politicians after 2014." Not quite Muhandis was MP in 2005, Dagher Mousawi another key PMF figure pre-2014, led a parliament committee, AAH had an MP before SIS war

And of course, Hadi al Ameri almost turned the Iraqi police into the first Iran-backed PMF way before anyone heard the term "Hashd al Shaabi," so This isn't just quibbling It's important and relates to failure of GO to hold Iran-backed figures to account

The Relevant threat ISIS poses to the US is their ability to plot external attacks - they were unable to do so until they controlled terrain.

The vast majority of the counter ISIS ops in Iraq were to protect the Iraqi Government that has chosen Iran over US.

If we stay long enough for Iran to strike back - and they will, this calculus could hold.

If we leave & deny Iran of the conflict they want they have to answer to their ppl why their economy is in shambles.

If we slap Iraq with sanctions Iran is denied any economic reprieve.

Sulmani's plans all centered on the US being within striking distance.

If we deny Sulmani's successor proximity we drastically limit their response capability

Our denial of proximity hardly limits our ability to continue to decapitate the QF & their proxies.

However DOD/IC reps to the NSA won't give options they know POTUS will reject causing them & their agency to lose credibility.

If we stay & get bogged down, Iran, Russia & China win.

If we take away Iran's access to the world economy via sanctioning Iraq - IR gets spread very thin.

RU/China too will get overextended there.

The Soleimani link is a stretch but Iran did and like still is providing sanctuary for AQ leaders.

What can't be overlooked is Iran and Assad's long standing relations & Assad's of facilitation of AQ foreign fighters into Iraq to kill US troops.

Mr. Darth Vader @MrDarthVader20 · Jan 5

Also I don't think Assad facilitated AQ foreign fighters. ISIS did bring in a bunch with Turkey looking the other way. Assad (like Libya) lost control of several cities that did allow foreign fighters freedom of movement with impunity. Assad also has Shia proxies helping him.

Brett @[redacted] Jan 7

Hell, we just sent over thousands of fresh targets for them that I imagine are still clumped up close enough for a dozen missiles to do incredible damage.

When Trump was briefed on Sulmani he likely asked the obvious question- why haven't we killed him yet?

Then he did what no other POTUS could - gave us the order to kill him.

That's leadership. Obama's scholarship & Bush's silly ideas resulted Iran taking over the region.

Today's vote n Iraq Parliament does not by itself compel the US mi tary to leave Iraq Troops are there at the invitation of the executive branch not Parliament so the vote is mainly symbolic, confirming a political mandate for the PM to kick out US forces.

I'd take strong issue with any official calling imminent attacks by Sulmani "razor thin".

It's hardly a secret that Sulmani told his proxies in Iraq to hold their fire on US forces in IZ/SY during the fight against ISIS - but to be prepared to strike us when ISIS was beaten.

1st & foremost the k illing of QS & AMM disrupted their ability to react, they have ess potent successors who are scrambling to secure their safety.

The 2nd reason is that the Iranians are waiting for the GOI to kick us out and for us to refuse, that allows proxies like Sadr to claim his attacks are defending sovereignty.

If the GOI kicks us out & we withdraw there will still be proxy reprisals with Iran claiming victory.

Mike Goble was laid to rest in Arlington National Cemetery yesterday.

He was killed fighting the enemy in AFG just before Christmas.

If you can, please help his family out.

Sat sfying the imminence criteria essentia for a preemptive action just.fiabie under nt'l law would have required ntervening vs actual troops preparing to carry out an attack. What was done vs Suleimani looks to have been reta iation or prevention. someth ng very different.

If an attack is imminent we take preventative actions to stop it.

QS & AMM had long histories of attacks against the US & were planning more, look no further than the attack on K1 & the US Embassy.

Their killing was justified force protection & both were designated terrorists

There have been no more effective attacks because we disrupted their decision making process by killing QS & AMM.

This is exact reason we conduct these strikes - effect the enemy's ability to plan long enough to attack us. Without strikes we let them plan the next move.

Trump isn't a detail guy so my hope here is that he doesn't get into the nitty gritty of coming sanctions and US officialdom can keep them narrowly focused. I also assume nuclear sized sanctions would affect world energy markets

Its unlikely Trump closely followed who QS, Muhandis, Shalihi or Shibil were either - but asked his experts to inflict max damage when he felt the time was right. So Iran like "max pressure" sanctions could be on the horizon for Iraq.

oe, AQ literally has put out fatwas denouncing Shia as heretics and sponsored groups like Junda ah & Lashkar-e-Jhangvi targeting Shias. Iran stopped cooperat ng when we inc uded them in "Axis of Evi " They worked with Assad once KSA started bankrolling ISIS for religious wars.

The religious rhetoric is different than AQ's strategy. UBL & Zawahri asked Zarqawi to stop targeting the Shia & focus on us.

ISIS's success has largely taken over the Sunni extremist brand so today there is a much stronger divide.

I know everyone is watching to see what happens with the GOI vote / PM drama.

Governmental procedure is what western media understands and is well versed at covering.

Here is the reality - the GOI drama is theater, Iran controls the overwhelming majority of armed Iraqis.

Regardless of weather the GOI kicks us out or not, Iran will direct its proxies to attack us.

They have not yet for 2 reasons

1st & foremost the killing of QS & AMM disrupted their ability to react, they have less potent successors who are scrambling to secure their safety.

joe kent @joekent16jan19 · Jan 7

The 2nd reason is that the Iranians are waiting for the GOI to kick us out and for us to refuse. that allows proxies like Sadr to claim his attacks are defending sovereignty

If the GOI kicks us out & we withdraw there will still be proxy reprisals with Iran

The Iranian regime uses external threats to rally its people around the Ayatollahs so some conflict with the US is good for them domestically.

Encouraging a conventional response is Iran going all in on needing a war with us.

It is not surprising that Iran is retaliating, it is surprising that Iran has chosen to shoot conventional missiles from Iranian territory.

In doing so they are justifying a conventional US response.

Why would the masters of proxy warfare select this option?

Turkey has good relations with the KRG, they at least tolerate them, I think it would be sustainable.

It does all go back to how badly do we need large numbers of troops in Iraq? We have been somewhat conditioned to think anything less than mil bases everywhere is a fail.

The 2nd reason is that the Iranians are waiting for the GOI to kick us out and for us to refuse. that allows proxies like Sadr to claim his attacks are defending sovereignty

If the GOI kicks us out & we withdraw there will still be proxy reprisals with Iran claiming victory

Curious to see what the response will be. If no Americans are killed, I have to believe that this was just theatre on Iran's part to show their people "see. we did something." Is that worth escalating? We'll see.

Hopefully rumors of the US killing Abdul Reza Shahlai in Yemen are true.

He helped smuggle armor piercing roadside bombs into Iraq that killed hundreds US troops and planned one of the most sophisticated kidnappings of the war that resulted in the execution of 4 US soldiers.

In 2010 Shahla. planned to assassinate the Saudi ambassador to the JS n a Washington DC restaurant with explosive device that would have killed Americans n the process.

Since then he was Sulamn s point man in Yemen, assisting the Huthis with their choke hold on the Red sea.

The assumption that staying in Iraq to relive OIF or a conventional war with Iran is the only alternative to continued capitulation shows the USG's lack of critical thinking.

Cut off Iran's funding by sanctioning Iraq. Make Iraq pay for their choices.

Pompeo really driving home in all these interviews that this wasn't some gutsy Trump move, but an intelligence-driven decision to foil simultaneous attacks in Iraq, Syria, and Lebanon.

SECRETARY POMPEO: John, we'll do our best to release everything that we know that's appropriate that we can, that doesn't put anyone at risk. We'll do our best. With no US forces in Iraq to target & fresh sanctions on Iraq it becomes a burden to Iran - they will have lots of proxies looking for paychecks that disappear when we pull out & sanction.

Simultaneously we air strike their proxies & mil as needed while ISIS returns.

Today's vote in Iraq. Parliament does not by itself compel the US military to leave Iraq. Troops are there at the invitation of the executive branch — not Parliament — so the vote is mainly symbolic, confirming a political mandate for the PM to kick out US forces.

I'd take strong issue with any official calling imminent attacks by Sulmani "razor thin"

It's hardly a secret that Sulmani told his proxies in Iraq to hold their fire on US forces in IZ/SY during the fight against ISIS but to be prepared to strike us when ISIS was beaten

4 1 15

joe kent @oekent16jan19 · Jan 4

Additionally KH just killed an American & we responded the designation of Iran/KH's targets would be Sulmani's call.

Bush could never address the Iranian threat because after de ba'athification and getting rid of Saddam we went all in with Dawa/SCIRI/Badr.

If we went too deep on the Iranian proxy target deck we hit GOI - that countered the narrative that building the GOI was a success.

It is not surprising that Iran is retaliating, it is surprising that Iran has chosen to shoot conventional missiles from Iranian territory

In doing so they are justifying a conventional US response.

Why would the masters of proxy warfare select this option?

Curious. why do you think they would not go after us n the gulf?

They have a decent swarm / Boat IED capability & nascent proxies in Bahrain.

As long as Sunnis from Anbar in Iraq to Homs in Syria live under the Shia boot of Iraq/Iran to the East & Assad/Hizballah to the west, the only effective means of Sunni recourse is ISIS/AQ.

It's a civil war our best intentions can't fix.

I'm not an ran expert. But I am a military ana yst. When I see the mpact points of Iran's strike on Asad air base. I don't see purely symbolic strikes designed to avoid casualties, as some have speculated The strikes appear to target the base's military

If the Iranians most lethal weapons require proximity to their targets- Rockets & IEDs etc. why would we gift them with proximity?

Fight according to our strengths not theirs - don't let last night's success turn into a trap we can get out of.

The Iranians do a great job of using the tools of the west like the media, international law and the UN to gain sympathy from the left while also excelling at using terrorists and proxies to do their bidding. Its an impressive use of their capabilities.

The Iranians have been escalating since 1979.

The Iranians only seemed to ca m down after the deal because they were extending their reach & letting us act as their Air Force against ISIS.

Once ISIS was defeated they returned to business as usual.

Iranian calculus for our presence in Iraq is also a a win/win for them.

If the GOI tells us to leave they can claim they expelled us.

If we stay IR retains access to easily reachable targets, our troops, surrounded by their proxies.

What Iran can't "win" their way through is financing. Their economy is in shambles & they rely on Iraq to get around sanctions.

Placing max sanctions on Iraq/Iran transactions & removing our troops from Iraq removes their access to funds & targets.

What Iran can't "win" their way through is financing. Their economy is n shambles & they rely on Iraq to get around sanctions.

Placing max sanctions on Iraq/Iran transactions & removing our troops from Iraq removes their access to funds & targets

Additionally if we stay & spare Iraq sanctions we have not made Iraq pay for institutionalizing Iranian proxies & giving them US weaponry.

Negotiating to stay in Iraq equals trying to convince the Iraqis to allow us to stay in range of Iranian weapons & giving more tax payer $

Besides, I do not think there will be any full blown military escalations, simply due to the fact that when it does come to a war, the US has, and will always have, the upper hand in relation to Iran.

It is not surprising that Iran is retaliating, it is surprising that Iran has chosen to shoot conventional missiles from Iranian territory.

In doing so they are justifying a conventional US response.

Why would the masters of proxy warfare select this option?

There are st folks who are skeptical about the imminent threat QS posed to our troops in Iraq and in the reg on. Understand that groups ke SIS AQ have gotten most of the public s attention so the kill ng of QS feels d fferent.

A big reason why most ppl had never heard of QS is due to ISIS's domination of terrorist related news.

ISIS posed a direct threat to Iran's western border (Iraq) & considered Shia Iranians their arch rival - so ISIS and Iran were very much at war.

QS's ability to turn on terror cells close to US interests was well planned and professional, he viewed his ability to order these attacks as his strategic depth & power projection - the same way we view our navy & air force.

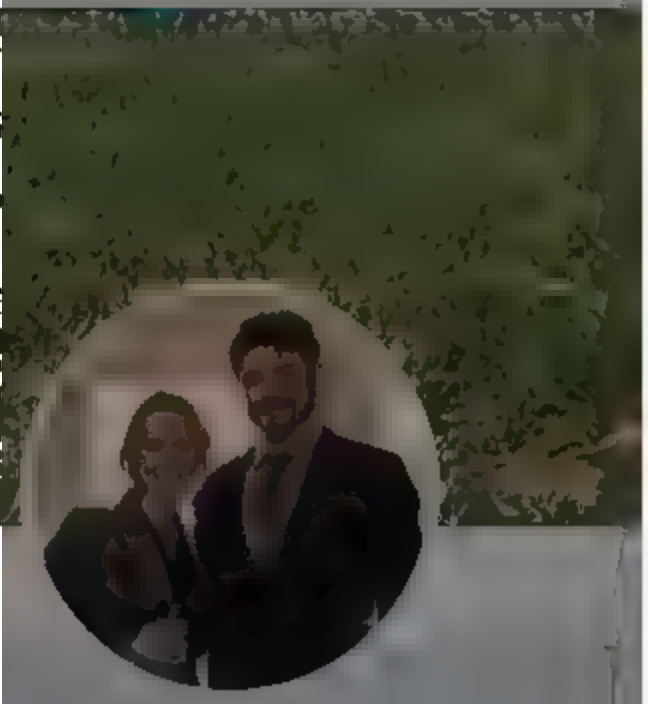
Therefore h s killing was indeed mm nent



The specific deta ls are not being expla ned because just as we watched QS for years we are watching the h s subordinates.

Duty to warn never gives the community a heads up about an upcoming HVT hit.

The threat that QS posed to the embassies was cells prepped for IDF/VBIEDs / kidnapping . The CENTCOM embassies are aware of these threats.

Therefore a new duty to warn likely would not be issued.

It's historic & Amazing whats happening with the Iranian and Iraqi protests movements.

We should be wary of calls for providing anything but moral support if we have learned anything from the GWOT it is that democracy can't be given from a foreigner. This is their fight.

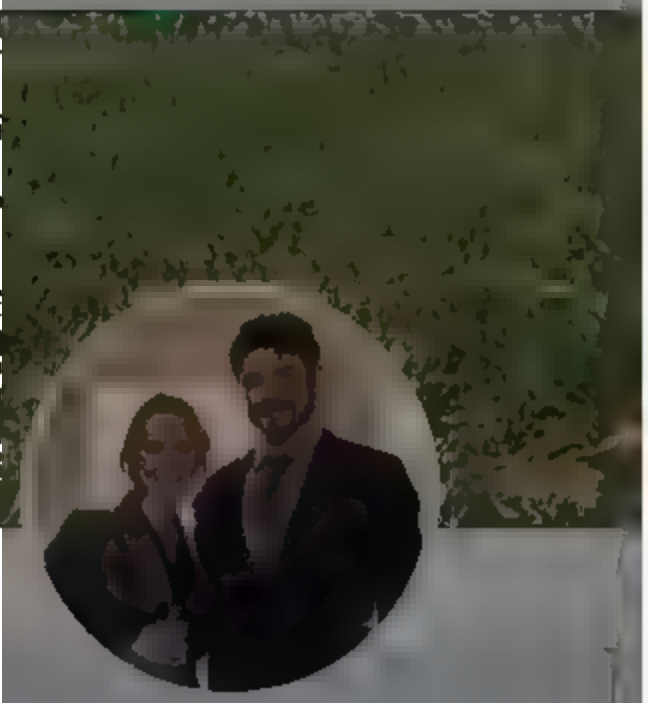
If the Iranian reg me is brought down by their people we can move into help them join the world, especia ly economically.



Iraq is tricky b/c we have wed ourselves to the corrupt Iranian controlled GOI, by cutting ties with the GO and letting Iraq be we may speed up their demise

Yes, except that you installed some puppets you chose.
Now that the Iraqi people have known who's with Iraq and who's with Iran or other countries, the democracy can be saved and people can really choose what's good for Iraq.

We know it's not president Trump's fault but we are hoping that he can help us fix the mess Bush and Obama created ! 600+ died and 12000 injured in 3 months! Those are scary numbers and it's only gonna get worse if we don't get help from the international community!.

First get rid of all militia leaders ( no exceptions) while continuing sanctions on Iran to insure minimum support by the Iranian regime to those killers, then things will get resolved by it self

joe kent @oekent16jan19 · Jan 13

Getting rid of militia leaders calls for a good deal of military action from us. Our history of military action resulting in positive change in the region is poor as well.

If every volunteer for the Hasid turned on their leaders you'd have a good start

Travel day. So, the usual rush around like it's the first time I left my house, throw random things in random bags (hoping it's the right stuff/right bag). haircut, last minute laundry. leave for airport 10-15 minutes late, eliminating any cushion to get through security. Sigh

By having no mission they are just targets. We are targets when we are deployed regardless, but we should be allowed to proactively go after the enemy or have a mission other than just being there.

In this case our troops on the ground are offering IR chances to strike us.

Serious question, Joe. For someone who has lost a wife in combat action, what is then the motivation to support a man who mocks the war dead and their families? Among his other character flaws, this one certainly drove me away from supporting Trump. Help me understand.

We continue to think having our troops in the Middle East with no clear mission is a projection of strength

This is conventional thinking that has not been true since WW2

Our troops extended to strategically worthless places gives the enemy the opportunity to bleed us

joe kent @ oekent16 an19 Jan 14

One or 1000 attacks won't break us but weaken us over time while the enemy gets stronger by not dying

War & power struggles have changed while we continue to use the same overextending tactics that have not been successfu n modern war

joe kent @ oekent16 an19 Jan 14

The new way to win is to force our enemies into overextension they can't sustain.

I've always been a conservative but never seen us hit back. He also pointed out the flaws of traditional R thinking. I support his America 1st policy due to my 20+ years in. I support his economic policies as well.

I like his willingness to address problems he could avoid

Such as DPRK & killing QS. ISIS had to be defeated & he let us do that. I want what he ran on in 2016 I'm disappointed by his lack of follow thru in getting us out of the wars.

When Shan was killed he met my family at Dover & gave us time with him 1 on 1 He was very moved by her & the others killed that day I'm aware of the horrible comments he made during 2016. I have not heard him mock KIA.

At the end of the day I truly don't care about the "man". I care about results.

Trump is same as any other politician he just says it all out loud, I'll take that over being lied to by a spokesman & a teleprompter.

Or do what Trump actually wants to do: leave. No US forces in Iraq/Syria, but status quo elsewhere in the Gulf. Magnitzky sanctions in Iraq, but refrain from crashing the economy. De-escalate, but make US red lines clear. Pompeo should listen to Trump s actual preferences

joe kent @oekent16jan19 · Jan 11

I feel like as Trump attempts these maneuvers there are many in his camp clinging to the failed neocon legacy.

Wayne W. S. Hsieh @whsieh · Jan 11

It's MUCH deeper than that. Mattis (e.g., wasn t a "neocon," but he is part of the FP establishment, whose worldview is at odds with Trump and struggles with making his (electorally approved!) instincts into actual policy. Trump s failings as a manager makes things even worse

Wayne W. S. Hsieh @whsieh · Jan 11

Honestly, if these decisions were up to me, I'd probably be classified by most as a "neocon." But what infuriates me is Trump WON the election: my policy preferences were literally CRUSHED at the polls. But the NatSec bureaucracy seems to act as if nothing has changed.

We continue to think having our troops in the Middle East with no clear mission is a projection of strength.

This is conventional thinking that has not been true since WW2.

Our troops extended to strategically worthless places gives the enemy the opportunity to bleed us.

The new way to win is to force our enemies into overextension they can't sustain.

In the Middle East our economically weak enemies Russia & Iran are over extending but buffered by our half hearted commitment & us acting as their Air Force against jihadists.

I was contrasting the media reaction between killing Americans vs. QS. I personally believe both were legal killings.

It's telling to see the media & most Ds envoke the constitution w/ QS when they were silent about killing Americans.

My favorite scary talk from the left & media is "constitutional crisis" especially pertaining to Trump killing QS while not saying a word while Obama killed American terrorists abroad with zero due process.

But Obama was so polished & Trump is just mean.....

Difference is that AUMF covered action against AQAP that a JSPER was the target required special evaluation. The Awlaki strike remains deeply controversial among Ds.

OTOH, the Constitutional basis for the QS strike is murky, especially after SecDef's statements this morning

joe kent @oekent16jan19 · Jan 12

I don't see how killing 2 designated terrorists who just coordinated attacks on us is controversial. Under force protection it's justified. AUMF maybe

I agreed with Obama that killing Awlaki was justified. It's the media & left's contrast that's worth nothing.

This is conventional thinking that has not been true since WW2

Our troops extended to strategically worthless places gives the enemy the opportunity to bleed us.

Or do what Trump actually wants to do: leave. No US forces in Iraq/Syria, but status quo elsewhere in the Gulf. Magnitzky sanctions in Iraq, but refrain from crashing the economy. De-escalate, but make US red lines clear. Pompeo should listen to Trump's actual preferences

joe kent @oekent16jan19 · Jan 11

I feel like as Trump attempts these maneuvers there are many in his camp clinging to the failed neocon legacy.

1 · 1 · 1

Wayne W. S. Hsieh @whsieh · Jan 11

It's MUCH deeper than that. Mattis, e.g., wasn't a "neocon," but he is part of the FP establishment, whose worldview is at odds with Trump and struggles with making his (electorally approved!) instincts into actual policy. Trump's failings as a manager makes things even worse

Wayne W. S. Hsieh @whsieh · Jan 11

Honestly, if these decisions were up to me, I'd probably be classified by most as a "neocon." But what infuriates me is Trump WON the election—my policy preferences were literally CRUSHED at the polls. But the NatSec bureaucracy seems to act as if nothing has changed.

QS s ability to turn on terror cells c ose to US nterests was well planned and professiona., he viewed his ability to order these attacks as his strategic depth & power projection the same way we view our navy & a.r force.

Once he ordered his proxies to start in December his subordinates would be poised to attack.

Therefore his killing was indeed imminent.

The specific details are not being explained because just as we watched QS for years we are watching the his subordinates.

Once you hit Soleimani, you must be prepared for a complete reworking of the map. Must have that flexibility, and must have President on board and willing to pay election year penalties. You can't go back to the default status quo. That's gone.

Or do what Trump actually wants to do: leave. No US forces in Iraq/Syria, but status quo elsewhere in the Gulf. Magnitzky sanctions in Iraq, but refrain from crashing the economy. De-escalate, but make US red lines clear. Pompeo should listen to Trump's actual preferences

I feel like as Trump attempts these maneuvers there are many in his camp clinging to the failed neocon legacy.

1 · 1 · 1

Wayne W. S. Hsieh @whsieh · Jan 11

It's MUCH deeper than that. Mattis, e.g., wasn't a "neocon," but he is part of the FP establishment, whose worldview is at odds with Trump and struggles with making his (electorally approved!) instincts into actual policy. Trump's failings as a manager makes things even worse

Despite this unit's successes it has served a GOI controlled by Iran since 2009

CTS Officers who refused to pursue the GOI's sectarian agenda were fired

The result is a unit that we pay for and train but have no ability to influence.

The GOI uses them to target rivals & protect the elites. They will fight ISIS because our agenda with Iran over laps on that issue.

The Shia government also knows if they send CTS to wack some Sunnis & call it ISIS it's a win/win They keep the Sunnis down & the money from us flowing.

We call it success because we have invested too much and truth is painful & embarrassing

Whether to thwart IS S or Iran is a Sophie's choice. Making these decisions requires regional knowledge wisdom, strategic vision and historical perspective Does any of that sound remotely like Donald Trump?

If it was explained to him in pragmatic terms I think it would. The problem s our natsec experts are linear thinkers who only know how fight one way. We don t fight in the grey well regard ess of who the POTUS is. Bush & Obama were fails at this as well

The details and strategy of the fight is not the domain of the POTUS, stating a goal/end state is. I think Trump articulated that he does not want us in the region spending/bleeding with no ROI, but he has done a poor job of following up with his subordinates.

Most of ISIS's leadership was in our custody at some point.

Same with most of the Shia militia leadership.

Think of all the lives we could have saved if we would have treated our fight against blood thirsty savages like a war not a police action.

The flip side of my comment above -

Imagine the lives that would have been saved had we not invaded Iraq.

Saddam kept Islamists of both sect under his boot & Iran at bay.

Good read on SY/TU relations & RU influence.

I disagree that RU attempting to control SY/TU & TU Libya ops is an advantage for RU

We don't need any of the contested terrain like they do. We can make this costly for them.

RU's economy can't support long term adventures.

Enlisted Swine Nick (Rafal Gan-Ganowicz fan) @TheNumba1Guy 3h

I'm going to play devils advocate:

Journos and the American public didn't give a hoot regarding US casualties linked to Iranian EFPs. Not. One. Hoot. 600 plus dead, thousands more wounded.

This rabid interest is fueled by a desire to dunk on POTUS. Nothing more

3 7 17

Dan Lamothe @DanLamothe 3h

That's patently false. Many American journalists wrote many stories about EFPs. Some faced them in the backseat of the same vehicles.

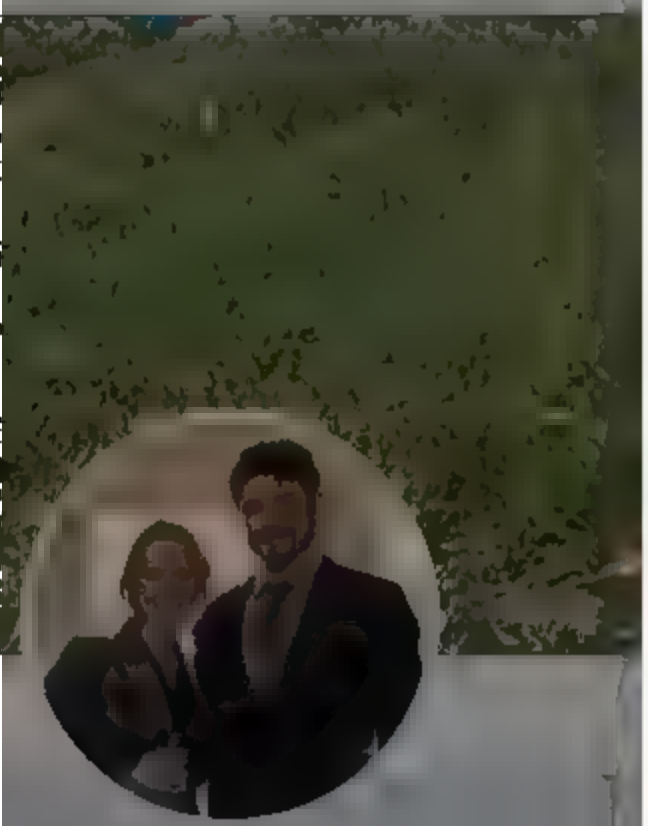
It seems we are scrutinizing the details of injuries without asking the obvious question -



Is our presence in Iraq worth the risk, if so explain what we gain?

I'm not saying you or Wapo personally. The overall narrative seems to be very "Trump doesn't care about TBI!"

Waiting to see what injury warrants a war is not a vital mission for our troops.

I'd love to see the administration answer those questions.

TBI? No war.

Loss of limb? Maybe some bombs?

Explain the mission again..... ?

If our policy makers & pol ldrs were d ligent enough to only use military force when there s a c ear vita nationa security objective with a well defined end state, then I would say no

I don't think we are competing against ideals or wining by following rules.

Following western morals will not beat RU /IR aggression / CH's long game and it certainly won't make a dent in radical Islam.

Our rule of law & morals are our strength here but our weakness abroad.

Spot on -

The GOI has no incentive to target IR controlled militias because we make every effort to remain attached to the GOI.

We are pleading them to let us stay so we can get shot at & pay them. While they refuse to protect our embassy.

Our presence lacks a purpose.

The navy was pulling out all the stops to fry the seal who, at worst killed a ISIS prisoner, but he was acquitted of that in a court of law.

Meanwhile the navy sentenced a seal who murdered a fellow American to 1 year in prison & promoted the other seal murder.

Worth a read.

I disagree with her approach to the Iran deal & her thinking that there is a traditional diplomatic approach to Iran/Syria/AFG.

What sticks out the most to me is Warren & the other 2020 dems are echoing the need to end our wars & rebalance.

The only success they had was disappearing military aged males from Jafr al Shukr & renaming it Jafr al Nasr

They had no tactical victory against ISIS they simply took credit for what US support to SOF did by walking in afterwards & taking credit.

In Tikrit they lost 8k.

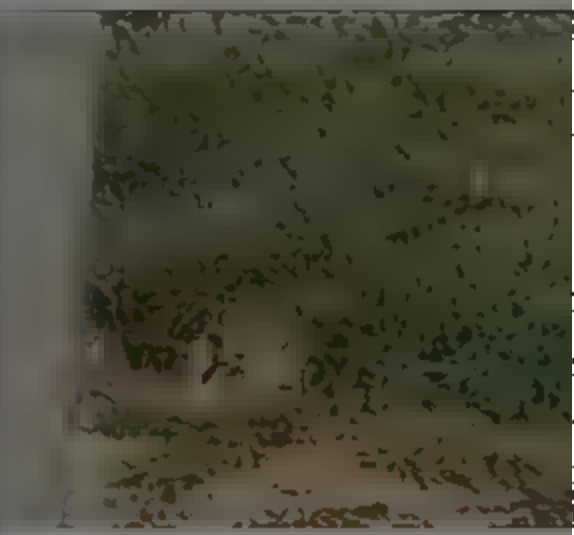
The biggest travesty is that the Hasid, flying KH, HAN & AAH flags followed our air strikes against ISIS to secure a foothold for Iran.



They did this with US equipment the GOI gave to them.

They did this as they told us “we are coming for you after ISIS.”

The American ppl want out of our endless wars, this is rare bipartisan issue.

Ending our wasteful wars does not mean we are retreating from the world.

We will be more agile when we are not bogged down in 3rd world back waters fighting for terrain that is worthless.

Obama didn't help but Bush's deba'athification and allowing the Shias to target Sunnis is what led to ISIS in Iraq.

Obama's missteps in SY gave ISIS space & power.

This one was common sense not brilliance. This was recommended during both Bush & Obama's tenure. Both backed away & QS continued to kill & personally manage IR proxies.

Our most effective post 9/11 CT efforts took place in countries with minimal US troops on the ground, namely Yemen & Pakistan.

Our major deployments (IZ,SY, AFG) center on fighting evil that lacks the capacity & intent to attack the homeland.

Evil? Yes. Worth a war? No.

What sticks out the most to me is the assumption that SOF can continue to deploy to war consistently & grow without a reduction in quality & sanity.

It's easy for the brass to write a memo

It's nearly impossible for SOCOM to say we can't sustain ops & quality of the force

I understand that this has to do with faith more than anything, and for the Mormon history of standing up for their God in the face of persecution. Romney knows that Trump is ungodly and his faith cannot justify supporting Trump.

Ideological armed groups thrive on sectarianism, however any challenge to their dominance is perceived as a threat. ISIS routinely killed Sunnis whom disagreed with their doctrine. Sadrists will not hesitate to eliminate Shia who stand up to them

1 7 42

Power and monopoly of representation is the utmost goal. Sadrists don t practice verbal "takfir"of their opponents, but opposing Sadr is just as blasphemous. I ve read "Muqtada is like Baghdadi" from thousands of Iraqis today; an argument that would be refused in most DC quarters

This ugly truth reflects a failure the natsec world is still running from.

What sticks out the most to me is the assumption that SOF can continue to deploy to war consistently & grow without a reduction in quality & sanity.

It's easy for the brass to write a memo.

It's nearly impossible for SOCOM to say we can't sustain ops & quality of the force.

The U.S. Embassy in Baghdad strongly denounces the brutal assault in the holy city of Najaf on February 6 that led to the killing and wounding of peaceful demonstrators. It is reprehensible that armed groups continue to be permitted to violate Iraq's rule of law with impunity against peaceful citizens practicing their democratic right to freedom of expression, including demands for political and economic reform.

The Government of Iraq and its Security Forces have an obligation to put an end to this thuggery, which includes the kidnapping and assassination of civil activists and journalists, as well as beatings, use of live fire, and the burning of tents at peaceful demonstrations. We call on the Iraqi government to put an end to these criminal practices and bring the perpetrators to justice.

We salute the peaceful protestors for their admirable restraint in the face of these murderous tactics and urge them to maintain the peaceful nature of their

Zamili, Abu Dura, and Sadr...

U.S. EMBASSY BAGHDAD
Office of the Spokesperson

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE — February 6, 2020

The United States Condemns the Brutal Assault on Peaceful Demonstrators in Najaf

The U.S. Embassy in Baghdad strongly denounces the brutal assault in the holy city of Najaf on February 5 that led to the killing and wounding of peaceful demonstrators. It is reprehensible that armed groups continue to be permitted to violate Iraq's rule of law with impunity against peaceful citizens practicing their democratic right to freedom of expression, including demands for political and economic reform.

The Government of Iraq and its Security Forces have an obligation to put an end to this thuggery, which includes the kidnapping and assassination of civil activists and journalists, as well as beatings, use of live fire, and the burning of tents at peaceful demonstrations. We call on the Iraqi government to put an end to these criminal practices and bring the perpetrators to justice.

We salute the peaceful protestors for their admirable restraint in the face of these

We are rewarding the GOI and thereby Iran for allowing militias to attack us & Iraqi protestors.

All Iranian energy should be sanctioned. This is not max pressure.

The GOI is a major loophole for the Iranians.

AQAP in Yemen & AQ n Pakistan have aunched the most of the plots against the US homeland post 9/11

We have been abie to hunt and kill terror ldrs in both locations w/out a mi ntervention or nation building

These are CT models for AFG/SYR/IZ that allow us to end our wars.

Tribal laws & loyalty are more at play than Shiaism.

If the reports of multiple US KIA in AFG are true we must walk from the peace deal w/the TB @realDonaldTrump should keep his promise to end the war after he keeps his SOTU promise and kills tens of thousands.

AFG isn't worth another US KIA. Extreme violence is all they respect

NEW, statement from US Forces-Afghanistan spox Col. Leggett:

2 US troops killed and six injured in Afghanistan after "an individual in an Afghan uniform opened fire on the combined U.S. and Afghan force with a machine gun."

wounded service members are receiving medical treatment at a U.S. facility.

Upon completing a key-leader engagement at the district center, current reports indicate an individual in an Afghan uniform opened fire on the combined U.S. and Afghan force with a machine gun.

We are still collecting information and the cause or motive behind the attack is unknown at this time. The incident is under investigation.

Rep Waltz is a good man but I disagree w/ his stance on AFG

We must try a new strategy when we continue to fail

The terror threat emanating from AFG does not require us to back the AFG GOV

Conduct limited CT strikes w/out a major deployment of troops, see CT Ops in Yem/Pak

The “stay the course” mantra attempts to replace a lack of critical thinking & creativity with the bravado of resolve.

Our strategy has not worked in 18 years.

Why would it suddenly start to work?

It won’t, but we are too stubborn to admit it & cut our loses.

I hold no brief for Trump, but words are important.

He wasn't "fired" - he was reassigned. No impact on his paycheck.

He was a bad staff officer who went around the chain of command. He should have been reassigned to a role better fit to his views of his role as an O5.

That's true but in Libya's case it wasn't the US or NATO that caused the instability. Remember Libya already had 2 governments and 2 flags when NATO invaded in March 2011

Time to rethink what we're doing. No idea how to go about this but change is necessary.

The biggest help the JS (or anybody else for that matter) can do is to listen to what people on the ground want

I m the last person to defend the Iraq War of 2003. But doesn t mean I apologize for Saddam

All that was needed in Syria was a negotiated+enforced NFZ back in 2011

Mikasa Ackerman @HardFastAndFree 2h

But Barack Obama went to great lengths to defend Assad and his goons just so he could get his Iran Deal through

If we listen to the demands of people on the ground, we can save ourselves a lot of trouble (and also get ourselves friends in the region).

It's a logical strategy

Our problem is that we are still wed to the GOI so we remain in areas that are easily reachable by Iranian proxies & a low R access to IZ's economy

I'm skeptica that this is an actual plan & not just for internal Israel politics.

joe kent @ oekent16 an19 4h
Many unelected officials n the DOD/DOS are desperately clinging to the GOI even when they have shown themselves to only be a tool for Iran.

Admitting that the GOI is a failure is viewed as admitting our efforts in Iraq since 2003 have been a waste.

Yes, it does. Think about the $500bn of weapons we've given the ANDSF. Where does that go? Taliban. AQ. TTP. LeT.

Pakistan destabilizes, India reacts. China and Russia counter, and yay there's nukes in the region.

Anyone who thinks it's not in our interest is myopic.

swabber @ThePorridgy 47m

With all due respect, aren't the weapons we supplied to ANSDF already going into the hands of Taliban and AQ? And don't India and Pakistan have larger conflicts besides Afghanistan?

Ben Collins @BenCollins1776 40m

It's the difference between 40 M-4s here and there and cases of Carl Gs. And when AF destabilizes it will become THE epicenter for jihadists-the consequence of which will suck in Pakistan and India in short order.

We should withdraw our troops b/c there is no return on investment & we only stand to lose.

There is no prize in Afghanistan.

We can conduct CT strikes w/out 1000s of troops & w/out propping up our failed nation building experiment.

If Trump says the TBI's caused by IR missiles are serious injuries the next question is what will we do to retaliate against IR?

The criticism is coming from partisans who question Trump killing QS to prevent more Americans from being killed & to avenge 600+ KIA by IR.

This is clearly a partisan tactic not a genuine concern.

TBI is a serious issue, but we should be far more concerned with ending the wars than semantics over an injury's classification.

Maliki was "our guy" & we always acknowledged Amiri as a legit member of the GOI.

So going after them would be viewed by many in DOD/DOS as admitting that we were wrong.

Its the same reason we are still pretending the GOI is anything but a IR proxy.

Our foolish pride.

I read it, 2A is not just about self defense, although that's it's most common use.

2A gives the ppl a means of recourse against the government to defend our god given rights.

Gov can't prevent evil. It's on us to defend ourselves 2A allows us to do so.

The idea of an agreement w/the TB is a great example of us seeing the world as we see ourselves.

We assume we can sit down w/ savages & come up with an agreement like we do w/ civilized ppl.

This all theater - just leave. We can kill & bribe from afar as needed.

I'm hearing reports of 8,600 US troops remaining in AFG are inaccurate. @realDonaldTrump needs to keep his promise to end this endless war. That means zero overt military forces. And it means a speedy but not hasty withdrawal of them. Anything else is unacceptable. #Afghanistan

Problem was/is there's no central gov for the ppl to rely on & the TB have popular support.

The Iraq surge didn't really work, the Sunnis in Iraq were just unable to keep fighting by 08 & Shia controlled the GOI.

I read it, 2A is not just about self defense, although that's it s most common use

2A gives the ppl a means of recourse aga nst the government to defend our god g ven rights.

Gov can't prevent evil It's on us to defend ourselves 2A allows us to do so.

I fear, Joe, that the bel ef in the Second Amendment as a defense aga nst a tyrannical government, has outlived its usefu ness by 2 1/2 centuries The fire power of 1776 s no longer part of any combat equat on

I'd argue that we haven't needed to defend against a tyrannical gov b/c of 2A.

The gov can't tell us when we've had enough of a god given right. Imagine thinking that about any of the other amendments, like placing limits on free speech/assembly/press etc.

The biggest fallacy of Washington think is the conviction that Iran will negotiate a new nuclear deal if sanctions & econ pain are increased.

Read quote by NSA Chief O'Brian

US policy makers said the same of Syria, before it burst into civil war

I don't get why these statements are taken seriously. Some Kurd sh officials have been exaggerating the threat for political reasons, in ways that don t match facts on the ground The threat exists, and it' l grow, but these claims are flat out wrong Frankly silly.

Is the goal to get to zero US troops? Esper wouldn't go there and I'm not convinced that's ever possible, but that's the last Trump has said about it for now.

Esper talked more about China and 5G. I'll have more this week on the US teams hard anti-China/pro-West performance here, and the reaction from Washington's friends and not-so-friends.

Syrians were perhaps too hopeful that a political transition could happen after the ruling class was known for its violence against dissent. Poisining the opposition movement from inside by 'islamizing' it shows that there was a long-term strategy that did not include concessions

The new model of wall that was built in El Paso is on the left side and the 2006 model is built on the right. Very different and hard to imagine them using the camouflage ladder on the new wall. The EPS has both but, from what I saw, most of the fencing is from 2006.

But yeah, ironically, SIGINT is probably easier to maliciously fake than HUMINT with modern technology and the resources available to nation states

Humans will always be the weakest link in any security system.

Rule of thumb:
If a guy claims SF and is telling war stories of all the kills he racked up then he is full of shit.
If a guy claims SF and has a bunch of stories about being drunk and getting beat up by Polzei on the streets of Berlin he is for sure the real deal.

Amen. There was another 15-16 year old, whose name I can't remember at the moment, who was killed on Iwo by an artillery barrage right on the beach. My dad was WIA there in Cushman's Pocket, one of 10 survivors out of 4 assault platoons. He was an "old man" as a 22yr old 2nd Lt.

I don't agree think DJT's attacks on the IC/DOJ/alliances are serious and ong last ng fear a second term

I might be wrong, though We haven't had a government intervention in the economy like Bernie proposes since 1933. it's hard to predict.

I left that community recently, it was not in shambles under Trump or Obama.

Trump ran on a different approach & has attempted to govern accordingly

The shambles narrative is driven by Trump's tone & med a hysteria.

I left in Sep 18, it was "ok" then. The moves of the past week are not positive developments We are opening ourselves to foreign attack.

Trump is hard to predict, but it's w/in the realm of possibility he'd back the Poles against Russia. Bernie OTOH isn't going to spend scarce dollars on a credible conventional deterrent in Europe - so a Pres. Sanders won't even have a mil option to push back on Putin in a crisis.

My assessment has been that, if there was a move on the Baltics, under BHO there was uncertainty if we would win. Now, there's uncertainty if we'll fight at all.

I don't think that Bernie walks away from NATO in the same way DJT might in a crisis. Depends on his team.

Great thread on the Boy Scouts

I was lucky enough to grow up in a great scouting community that gave boys a place to learn how to be men

My troop was led by 2 vets & staffed by the fathers of our community

The experience started w/ cubs & lasted thru high school w/ explorers

Brendan @aintgotnobrakes

With the Boy Scouts going bankrupt, we must examine what its founder Lord Baden-Powell had in mind for the Scouting movement, so we can resurrect its founding spirit a patriotic pro-west movement that used boys

Our policy should reflect our national interests

In MENA we need CT/C-IR & C-Russian aggression

Capacity building is a trap

Renting existing proxies is sustainable

Long term capacity building is underpinned by nation building

The region is a proxy economy

I can't keep track of the narrative. I thought Kabul was a place for liberated women in the 60's before the west showed up, but now the west is the only thing protecting the hard fought for gains that women have made in Afghanistan?

"The West" first went into Afghanistan in 330 BC By the 1960s & 70s Kabul had paved roads, electricity, an ex-pat community, an international school. It was an exotic travel destination for backpackers who hitchhiked via Iran Then on Christmas Eve 1979 the Russians showed up

It is a narrative greatly exaggerated and amplified by educated Afghan ex-pats that their country was this amazing place before the Russians showed up. In reality, one city, for one class of people, for a brief moment, was kinda sorta okay.

Remember that attack in East Africa that killed several Kenyans and a US soldier? Well, an airstrike just took out the main Al Shebaab leader behind it.

One huge benefit of women going to Ranger School, meanwhile, is that it allows me to push back on this ugly narrative that young men are somehow especially dumb. I can now point to women and say, "Ah! Ah! Look at that young lady. She is just as dumb as I was at the age of 22."

Women in SOF/Combat arms is a complex issue that becomes an emotional issue due to the most vocal extremes of the argument.

What is not complex is that women have been in SOF as long as we have had SOF, starting with the OSS.

Many women have fought and died in SOF units alongside Green Berets / Rangers & combat arms units

So if they are good enough to bleed & die with us they should be welcome to go test their grit in selection and get the same respect that comes w/ earning a beret & tab.

joe kent @oekent16jan19 · 9m

That said, employing women in SOF units will require nuanced leadership.

The talents of the few women who are selected & qualify will be squandered if they used in a role that any SOF man could do.

Each SOF unit has a place where a women will enhance the mission

For the sake of equality she should get the experience of learning that 18C really means S4 & inventories not sweet demo.

The revamping was / is silly. The day women were allowed into SOF/combat arms the few women who volunteered to attend should have been given a packing list and told when/were to report.

Female GBs & a GBs should be proficient n all SF core tasks. but we all know not every SF guy is suited to preform every SF mission. Fema es GBs are just another personality / talent set to manage
